

Why did I write this book? These words? I was thinking of the countless others that were suffering in the many ways that I was. For that I know I wasn't alone. And in sharing the different things I was going through, I hoped that I might help others. And not just those who were suffering with multiple sclerosis. In this book I hope for things to change. This is not about my first year with M.S., or how I got through it, or even how to change your life and live with M.S. It's more about the feelings. It's about some of the hopes, or just the thoughts I was having, and the new ways I was looking at things in general. Most of it is about the craziness that was happening in my brain at the time and still is. I guess it's about how I was coping within myself.
